The man who says it never rains in Brownsville, has not been here for some time. A splendid rain fell today, and while it was not specially needed in town, appearances indicate that it is general.

Miss Beatrice Hooks of this city and Mrs. Clyde Fletcher, of Beaumont, have returned from a visit to their sister, Miss Josephine Hooks, who is teaching school in Hidalgo county.

W. D. Sprague of Corpus Christi, who has been here since Saturday in the interest of the Ed V. Price tailoring establishment at Chicago, was an outgoing passenger this morning. This was Mr. Sprague's first visit to Brownsville and he was very much pleased with our city, besides doing quite a good business for his firm. In fact he likes it so well, he will return later.

Belvard G. Stafford, who has been employed at the freight depot here for the past few months, has resigned his position and left this morning for Anahuac, Galveston county, where he will have charge of all the warehouses on a 6000-acre rice plantation. The young man has made hosts of friends during his short stay in Brownsville, all of whom regret very much his loss, but at the same time heartily congratulate him upon securing pleasant and profitable employment at Anahuac.

The many friends of E. A. McGary are glad to see him at his desk in the Merchants National bank, after an extended absence in San Antonio, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis several weeks ago and has since been recuperating in that city. Mr. McGary says he feels very well and hopes his days of suffering are over. THE HERALD congratulates Mr. McGary on his recovery and hopes his days upon earth may long and happy. He returned from the Alamo city last evening.

Among yesterday's arrivals in Brownsville THE HERALD is pleased to note that of G. W. Rendall, who has been spending the summer in Michigan. Mr. Rendall says he had a most pleasant visit, and that his winter underwear had been in use ever since he left here and felt very comfortable. The gentleman says the last week before he left Michigan there was ice every morning. Mr. Rendall has enjoyed splendid health since leaving here, and his many friends are glad to see him looking so well.

A Change in Business All Around

Was your sign well put up? If not where did you find it this morning? The ghostly visitation seemed to slight no man, and from the conglomeration of sign boards in evidence this morning there was quite a change in business all around. THE HERALD sign adorned the front of Willman's drug store, and we charged the proprietor of that pharmacy with trying to filch our good name, but he strenuously denied the charge. A small oval sign graced the front of THE HERALD office, upon which were the cabalistic words: "Drink Echo Springs Whisky," whatever that means. Weller's saloon sign was in front of the Miller Hotel, and the Board of Trade sign was in front of Crixell's saloon. The dummy whisky sign which usually greets the passers by at Crixell's front door, was standing in the middle of the street near the market, and a belated hackman was much put out because the man would not get out of the way. The dummy bore the name of one of our popular policemen. Many other changes too numerous to mention were made, and it was no uncommon sight this morning to see men in every direction bearing their signs back to their usual resting places, which reminded one of the walking advertisements usually seen in the comic supplements of our Sunday periodicals. No one seemed to resent the joke, all agreeing that as the ghosts walk but once in twelve months, their weird and uncanny doings might be regarded with a considerable degree of leniency.

CLINE.

Luther Burbank Outdone.

Although his experiments have astonished the world, yet in one respect Luther Burbank can learn a valuable lesson from the natives of a certain locality in Southern Mexico. Down there they have successfully crossed the sheep with the hog and have produced an animal whose meat is superior in every respect to that of either the one or the other. Capt. H. C. Withers, of Austin, for more than a quarter of a century an official of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, and whose travels have carried him to all portions of Mexico, has partaken of the meat of the sheep-hog and says, in point of taste and flavor, there is no meat under the sun that can approach it. The cross-breeding, it seems, is confined to only one locality in Mexico, but there it has been kept up for nearly a hundred years. Capt. Withers was so pleased with the meat of the sheep-hog, that he will try the experiment of crossing the two on his farm in Caldwell county and he anticipates nothing but success. He says the meat is of so superior a quality that those who once try it will want no other, and if his experiment turns out successfully he has no fear of not finding a ready market for all the sheep-hogs he may raise. The method of crossing was kept a profound secret among the Mexicans, and the captain discovered it by the merest accident. State Topics will watch Capt. Withers' experiment with the greatest interest and should it prove a success, will start a sheep-hog farm of its own for the purpose of supplying with a meat that ought to be pleasing to their palates, those gubernatorial candidates who are Anti-Prohibitionists and Local Optionists at one and the same time.—State Topics.

Made the Lady Mad.

Louise News.

A young society man of El Campo is in trouble. It came around in about the following manner: The young man had a date to take his best girl out driving. When the appointed time rolled around it found him at her front gate. Opening the door, the young lady peered out just in time to hear him call "Hello, Ready!" She slammed the door, saying that she would accompany no man who could not distinguish red hair from golden.
